I worked for IBM in , NY in I lived in the Endicott plant. I had to stop using the basement parking in my building because I would become violently ill every time I went into the basement because of the fumes and smell. The whole building stunk but I never thought it was anything but poor maintenance. I developed uterian tumors and had to have a full hysterectomy a few years after I left New York. I've also has colon polyps and various occurrences of skin cancer. I also have developed a sensitivity to most cleaning chemicals and fragrances which seem to have started during my stay in
